Nationserv provides a reliable, responsive, and quality-driven repair solution built around the needs of modern insurance claims, ensuring consistent service delivery across both residential and commercial properties.

History.

Nationserv was formed in 2015 by founders Rhys and Darren, business partners with a shared vision: to create a contractor capable of delivering a truly end-to-end building solution, underpinned by trust, accountability, and exceptional service.

The business began modestly, operating from a single room in a family home, but with a clear and deliberate focus on excellent communication. From the outset, Nationserv committed to being open and honest with clients and customers alike, sharing the good, the bad, and the ugly to ensure clarity, confidence, and informed decision-making throughout every project.

Nationserv secured its first client within the insurance repair sector in 2015, setting the foundation for a repair-led business built around insurer requirements and policyholder experience. Since then, the company has grown year on year, adding new clients annually through sustainable, controlled growth, never compromising on service quality or core values.

Our team has grown organically alongside the business. As Nationserv expanded, we carefully introduced key personnel with complementary skills, strong ethics, and a shared sense of empathy for policyholders, ensuring alignment with both client expectations and our own values.

Today.

By 2026, Nationserv has grown into a £10 million business, recognised by our clients as one of their top-performing contractors and receiving annual awards in recognition of our service and performance.

Today, we operate from substantial offices in Hertfordshire, supported by a dedicated yard, plant, and storage facilities, a fleet of branded vans, and a workforce of more than 100 skilled tradespeople.

Despite our growth, Nationserv remains grounded in the principles on which it was founded: clear communication, accountable delivery, and putting people first—values that continue to guide our partnerships with insurers and the service we provide to policyholders.

Delivering Excellence

Rhys began his career after completing a business degree at university, moving directly into the construction industry with a small start-up maintenance company. Over the next eight years, he played a key role in helping the business grow significantly — an experience that proved both formative and eye-opening. As the company evolved, creative and ideological differences with the directors ultimately led Rhys to take a bold step and establish his own business. While this first venture was unsuccessful, it provided invaluable lessons that strengthened his resolve and sharpened his leadership approach.

Undeterred, Rhys went on to establish Nationserv in 2015, founded on a clear vision and strong identity. His goal was to deliver the highest standard of professional electrical and building services, underpinned by uncompromising values, open communication, and industry-leading health and safety standards. Under his leadership, the business has focused on delivering clients' visions on time, on budget, and without compromise.

Rhys believes that integrity is the defining factor of long-term success. His philosophy is simple: when honesty, accountability, and respect guide decision-making, both the business and its people naturally stand out. He is committed to building an approachable, solutions-driven team that listens first, collaborates openly, and consistently delivers confidence to clients at every stage of a project.

As CEO of Nationserv, his role is to continually drive the business forward, challenge standards, and demand excellence at every level. He is committed to giving clients absolute confidence that their projects, people, and critical systems are in the safest possible hands.

When you choose Nationserv as your trusted partner, we take that responsibility personally; your objectives become our objectives, your risks become ours, and your success becomes the measure by which we judge ourselves.

Royal Society of Medicine, London

Complex Commercial Ceiling Repairs

Project Description

Nationserv was appointed following a leak originating from offices above, which caused damage to ceilings within the Auditorium and Reception areas of the Royal Society of Medicine. The works were particularly complex due to the nature of the building and the sensitivity of the environment.

The auditorium featured fixed, arced seating, hardwood flooring, ceiling-hung lighting rigs, and an enclosed projection screen. Extensive protection and specialist access solutions were required to prevent secondary damage while repairs were undertaken within a prestigious, operational venue.

Our Approach

Nationserv adopted a carefully planned, methodical approach to manage risk and ensure quality:

- Extensive protection works to all fixed seating, flooring, lighting rigs, and equipment
- Design and erection of internal scaffold access, installed over multiple days to safely reach ceiling level
- Additional layered protection to lighting and ceiling features using foam, polythene, and Correx systems
- Detailed supervision and coordination to ensure safe working at height in a confined internal space

Scope of work delivered

- Multiple plaster repairs to damaged ceiling areas
- Specialist preparation of ornate ceiling details and coving
- Spray decoration to achieve a high-quality, uniform finish while minimising disruption
- Full reinstatement completed with protection maintained throughout the works

The Outcome

Nationserv successfully delivered the repairs with no damage to existing fixtures, fittings, or specialist equipment, demonstrating our ability to operate within sensitive commercial environments. The use of controlled access, specialist protection, and spray finishes ensured a high-quality result while reducing programme time and disruption.

This project highlights Nationserv's capability to manage complex commercial insurance repairs, combining technical expertise, careful planning, and strong on-site control to deliver right-first-time outcomes for clients and insurers alike.

Case Study

Project Description

Nationserv was instructed to manage a complex subsidence claim affecting an iconic commercial property in Hoxton Market. Due to the building's age, heritage features, and urban location, the claim required an extended period of monitoring to confirm movement patterns and identify the root cause.

After approximately two years of monitoring, the cause of subsidence was confirmed as a collapsed drain, triggering the need for carefully sequenced structural repairs. The works had to be undertaken within a live commercial environment while protecting original brickwork, architectural details, and finishes

Hoxton Market, London

Complex Subsidence & Structural Repairs

Our Approach

Nationserv adopted a phased, insurer-led approach, balancing technical accuracy, risk management, and cost control:

- Close coordination with engineers and stakeholders throughout the monitoring period
- Detailed planning to protect historic fabric and minimise disruption
- Use of specialist structural techniques appropriate to a heritage setting
- Strong site supervision and health & safety controls within a confined urban location

Scope of work delivered

- Structural crack identification and monitoring
- Drain investigations to confirm cause of movement
- Careful preparation of affected internal areas
- Drain repairs and ground stabilisation works
- Controlled breaking out and reinstatement
- Installation of specialist structural repair solutions to arrest movement
- Making good of internal masonry and finishes
- Restoration of architectural and decorative elements
- Final inspections and sign-off following stabilisation period

The Outcome

Nationserv successfully stabilised the structure and completed reinstatement works, allowing the property to return to full commercial use. The phased delivery ensured technical compliance while reducing insurer risk and avoiding unnecessary or premature repairs.

This project demonstrates Nationserv's capability to manage complex subsidence claims, including long-term monitoring, structural remediation, and sensitive reinstatement within heritage commercial buildings.

Case Study

Uxbridge, London

Emergency Escape of Water – Communal Area

Project Description

Nationserv was instructed following an emergency call from Sedgwick after a main water pipe burst within the communal area of an apartment block in Uxbridge. The incident caused flooding and damage throughout shared corridors and affected services within the building, requiring immediate action to prevent further damage and ensure resident safety.

The priority was to stabilise the situation quickly, make the property safe, and minimise disruption to occupants.

Our Immediate Response

Nationserv mobilised an emergency response team and attended site within four hours of instruction. Working in coordination with local authorities and building representatives, the team focused on rapid risk reduction and safe access for residents. Key actions included:

- Emergency make safe works to affected communal areas
- Clearance of debris caused by water damage and ceiling failures
- Coordination with local authorities to manage site safety
- Initial assessments to identify ongoing risks

Follow on actions

Within hours of arrival, Nationserv had:

- Fully cleared all loose and damaged materials
- Checked electrical systems to ensure safety
- Installed temporary lighting to maintain safe access for residents
- Provided access to our 24-hour remote support team, ensuring continuous assistance outside normal working hours

The Outcome

The property was made safe quickly and effectively, allowing residents to continue using communal areas safely while longer-term repair plans were progressed. Swift attendance, decisive action, and clear coordination helped prevent further damage and reduced the overall impact of the incident.

This project demonstrates Nationserv's capability to deliver rapid emergency response services, manage high-pressure situations, and protect both residents and insurer interests during escape of water claims.

Turning Construction Surplus into Community Strength.

In the construction industry, valuable materials are often thrown away. At the same time, families and community groups struggle to afford basic improvements to their homes or facilities.

We saw an opportunity to do things differently. The Community Build Hub was created to bring people and resources together — turning surplus materials into community projects that make a real difference.

We collect surplus materials from construction projects and give them a new purpose — helping local families, schools, and community groups while reducing waste and protecting our planet.

Quality Design. Expert Construction.

Alongside our core role as a specialist insurance repair contractor, Nationserv has evolved into an award-recognised design and build partner for high-quality residential developments and extensions.

Drawing on the same technical expertise, project control, and customer-focused approach that underpin our insurance work, we deliver bespoke construction projects with the same commitment to quality and communication.

This approach was recognised at a national level when our Woodfield Road, Hertfordshire project was shortlisted as a National Finalist in the Best Residential Extension category at the LABC Building Excellence Awards Grand Finals. Standing among the best projects in the country, this recognition reflects the craftsmanship, attention to detail, and collaborative spirit that define Nationserv's work across both repair and new-build sectors.
